SINGLE CELEBS SEX UP JUNGLE

We're very horny soap stars...get us in there

EXCLUSIVE

I'M A Celeb fans were last night set for fumbles in the jungle as soap singles Malandra Burrows and Dean Gaffney prepared to join the camp. They're on a mission to sex up the show as ITV1 bosses look to add some love action to keep the ratings sky high.

SHOCK: Ken Livingstone

Ken's a cash guzzler

DRIVERS of gas-guzzling cars are to face a £25 bill to enter London's congestion charge zone.

Ken Livingstone plans to introduce the emissions-based fee to target heavily-polluting vehicles.

It means drivers of 4x4s and cars in the excise duty band G with CO₂ emissions above 225g per kilometre will pay the top charge.

The new levy could be imposed by 2009 or 2010 but the London Mayor wants it to start earlier.

Impact

He said vehicles in bands A or B - like the tiny electric car G-Wiz and the Prius - with less than 120g CO₂ per km would pay nothing from 2008.

The current £8 charge will be levied on most vehicles in bands C, D, E and F with CO₂ from 120g to 225g.

The Mayor said: "We're encouraging people to take into account the impact of their choice of new car on the environment and planet."

Dig for bodies

POLICE who quizzed a child-sex killer over the disappearance of two boys were last night digging up wasteland.

Police used a JCB digger to begin searching for remains of David Spencer and Patrick Warren.

David, who was 13 when he went missing and best pal Patrick, who was just 11, have not been seen since Boxing Day 1996.

Police have quizzed pervert Brian Lunn Field, 70, who was jailed for life in 2001 for the 1968 rape and murder of schoolboy Roy Tutill, in connection with the missing boys.

Yesterday digging began on land near Birmingham International Airport.

BLOWN-UP BRIT GIRL WAS ONLY IN IRAQ A WEEK

by JERRY LAWTON

THE woman intelligence officer killed in a patrol boat attack had been in Iraq for just one week.

Staff Sgt Sharron Elliott was among four British soldiers who died when their boat was hit by an improvised shrapnel-filled bomb.

They had been carrying out routine operations along the Shatt al-Arab waterway in Basra on Remembrance Sunday when the attack happened.

Beautiful

The others who perished were Warrant Officer Lee Hopkins, of the Royal Corps of Signals; Corporal Ben Nowak, of 45 Commando Royal Marines, and Marine Jason Hylton, of 539 Assault Squadron Royal Marines. Sharron, 34, is only the second woman soldier killed in action since the conflict began in 2003. Last night her grief-stricken mum Elsie Manning said: "She was the most beautiful caring person in the world."

"Sharron was deployed to Iraq just over a week ago. Her life was the Army. It is of comfort that she died doing what she loved."

Sharron, who was born in Ipswich but lived near Newcastle upon Tyne, became the first woman to qualify as an Army aircraft technician, before she transferred to the Intelligence Corps six years ago.

Lt Col Andrew Park, her commanding officer in Iraq, said that she was "dedicated and professional" and "an inspiration" to her colleagues.

Sons

Marine Hylton, 33, who lived near Burton upon Trent, Staffs, had also returned to Iraq only a week before his death. He leaves sons, Nathan, 13, and Joshua, 16.

WO Hopkins, 35, from Wellingborough, Northants, was five weeks into a six-month tour in Iraq and was described as "the ultimate professional".

He had been married for 10 years and leaves a wife and three-year-old son.

Cpl Nowak, 27, from Liverpool, was described as "outgoing" and he would be remembered for his keen sense of humour.

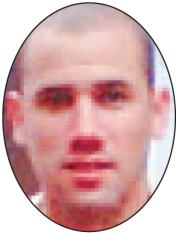

Last night weapons specialists in Basra were assigned to hunt down the bombers.

Waste of rhyme

PARENTS could be forced to attend classes on how to sing their children nursery rhymes and read bedtime stories.

But critics have blasted the planned Government moves as "intrusive" and warned they'll cost taxpayers millions. Jill Kirby, of the Centre for Policy Studies think tank, fumed: "This is what happens when a government has failed to do anything about the real problems of family breakdown, fatherless families and neglect of children."

"It is setting about wasting its time and our money."

Children's Minister Beverly Hughes defended the move, due next year. She said children are at risk "unless we act".

CHOCS AWAY!

Cadbury pulls plug on £10m Corrie deal

by JOHN MAHONEY

CHOC giant Cadbury is axing its £10million a year sponsorship of Corrie because the soap isn't posh enough.

Bosses at Britain's biggest confectionery firm want to go upmarket and plug ranges of healthier, organic and more expensive dark chocolate.

Senior executives believe that Coronation Street's regular 11.1m fans are not the target audience they now want. They are also unsure about being associated with raunchy storylines featuring babes like Tina O'Brien, 22, and Kate Ford, 29 – the ITV1 show's Sarah Platt and Tracy Barlow.

Yesterday Cadbury announced it is pulling the plug on its deal after 10 years. It will start a stampede of companies looking to take over the package – the biggest of its kind on British telly.

Changes

Although the Dairy Milk firm has another year of its contract to run, TV chiefs are looking immediately for a new name to be flashed up before, during and after the soap's five episodes a week.

Cadbury's website recently admitted: "We have noticed changes in the pace of the scripts, and we are conscious that not everyone will respond positively to these changes."

Last night Cadbury's marketing director Phil Rumbol said: "Like many of its famous characters, it's time to say goodbye to the Street."

"We initially signed a two-year deal in

MELTING AWAY: Cadbury is pulling out

1996 – so the fact we stayed for a decade shows our commitment.

"Cadbury feels it is time to redeploy our marketing spend elsewhere. We wish ITV well in its search for a new sponsor."

Last night a Street source said: "It's a massive blow because it was such a huge deal. People have been saying for some time that Cadbury was getting itchy feet because our storylines were getting steamier."

Manufacturing giant Unilever is bookie Paddy Power's 4-1 favourite to be the next sponsor.

Darren Haines, spokesman for Paddy Power, said: "Speculation is likely to be as big as a Corrie Christmas plotline."

STAR ROLE: Kay

PETER'S PERFECT

FUNNYMAN Peter Kay tops an ITV1 wish list of talent bosses are keen to sign.

Phoenix Nights star Kay, 33, who is making his stage debut in The Producers for the next three months, wowed network chiefs with his performance on Parkinson last weekend.

Entertainment controller Paul Jackson confirmed: "I think his talents deserve a wider audience, like on ITV1."

BOND'S RIGHT

Fans mob Daniel at premiere

by CAMERON MILLAR

SUPER-SUAVE Daniel Craig brought London to a standstill as he arrived at the world premiere of new Bond flick Casino Royale.

Dozens of girl fans - who had queued for hours in the rain - screamed the hunky star's name as he arrived in Leicester Square.

Some in the crowd even asked 38-year-old Daniel to marry them. Daniel admitted he was amazed by the reception, and responded by hugging and kissing some of the crowd.

The star, who arrived with his latest girl, Satsuki Mitchell, 30, said: "It's fabulous - I didn't expect it you know. It's wonderful."

HER MAJ: Casino royal

The thing to do is just enjoy it. These things don't happen very often and I'm just going to have the best time."

Streets were sealed off and big screens set up so fans who couldn't get to the front could still see the stars arriving.

Daniel admitted having the world's cameras trained on him was very different from the premiere of his last film, Layer Cake. "I could get used to it," he quipped.

He was joined on the red carpet by sexy co-stars Eva Green, 26, and Caterina Murino, 32.

The Queen, 80, was the guest of honour at the bash, also attended by music legend Sir Elton John, 59, who arrived with Scissor Sisters star Jake Shears, 29.

Praised

Other celebs there were pop princesses Rachel Stevens, 28, and Sarah Harding, 24, plus footballer Teddy Sheringham, 40, and his girlfriend Danielle Lloyd, 22.

Daniel has been praised as the best Bond since Sean Connery, now 75, who played the role first, in 1962's Dr No. He has already signed up to play the hero in the next Bond flick, due out in November 2008.

Daniel has won praise for being a darker Bond than his predecessors, with fewer quips, though he can shoot with his tongue.

When asked whether he wants his martini shaken or stirred, he snaps back: "Do I look like I give a damn?"

New Uni degree for footie know-alls

STICK IT UP YOUR PUNDIT

WHAT a result! Britain's first university degree course has been launched for football pundits.

Boffins at Staffordshire University hope to churn out a new generation of TV legends like Gary Lineker, Alan Hansen and Mark Lawrenson.

Nineteen professional footballers nearing retirement have already signed up for the unique course to learn the tricks of the trade. But surely their biggest lesson will be how to avoid any "Big Ron" moments and learn from Ron Atkinson's infamous "n*r" gaffe about Marcel Desailly.

Here, we take a look at some of the most legendary howlers in the history of the game.

But, writes GARY NICKS, be warned folks because they're sexist, racist, foul-mouthed, homophobic and gob-smackingly outrageous.

This could be our best victory over Germany since the war

OOPS: Blunder prone Big Ron and John Motson

THEY REALLY TALK BALLS

"I'D like to give her one." That's what ex-Chelsea and Manchester United star Mickey Thomas was heard saying about a passing girl to former Blues owner Ken Bates. The girl was Bates's daughter.

EX-LIVERPOOL and Ireland star Ray Houghton speaks before he thinks, saying: "I've had a really busy day. I've been playing in a charity golf day to raise money for a boy seriously injured in a car accident. I had to drive like a lunatic to get here."

RON Atkinson had form well before his Desailly comment. He said as Liverpool player Steve McManaman lifted the 2002 European Cup, saying: "You won't see that again now the Scouser's got it."

HERE'S a classic case of not doing your research. Gary Bushell - who had just been to a tribute night for the recently deceased funny-man Bob Monkhouse - was a guest on Alan Brazil's TalkSport. Brazil: "How's Bob's health now?"

Bushell: "Er, he's dead Alan." Brazil: "I was sad to hear yesterday about the death of Inspector Morse, TV's John Shaw." TalkSport producer interrupts: "John Thaw, Alan." Brazil: "John, if you're listening, sorry mate."

AND there's more. Brazil, the day after the 9/11 attacks, offered up to listeners: "I wonder how all those politically correct people are feeling this morning."

THE Daily Star's very own Rodney Marsh caused himself a spot of bother with this gag after the Boxing Day tsunami: "There is no truth in the rumour Beckham's joining Newcastle. He says he won't go there given what the Toon army just did to Asia."

REFERRING to Tony Adams admitting his alcoholism, Ian Wright said: "It took a lot of bottle for Tony to own up."

BRIAN Clough kicked up a stink with this belter: Commenting on the number of French players at Arsenal, he said: "I bet their dressing room will smell of garlic."

"THE black players lend the side skill and flair, but you need the white players to give the team some brains and common sense," Former Crystal Palace chairman Ron Noades.

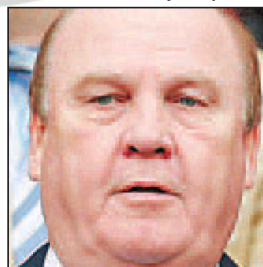

AND here's Magpies chairman Freddy Shepherd in a Gerald Ratner moment: "Newcastle fans are mugs for paying £30 for shirts that cost us £5 to make." Let's not forget this classic: "Geordie women are dogs."

CLOUGHIE also had a pop about Leicester, an old textile town. Referring to his protégé Martin O'Neill, Old Big Head said: "Anyone who can do more than make a jumper in Leicester must be a genius."

DAILY STAR says

We salute our fallen

MOVING tributes were paid yesterday to the four soldiers massacred in Iraq.

A senior officer described Staff Sergeant Sharron Elliott as "a no-nonsense, professional soldier who had displayed both strength and compassion".

She would be remembered by her colleagues for "her steel and determination, her calm, considered words and her smile".

Corporal Ben Nowak "constantly had a twinkle in his eye, symbolic of his enthusiasm and love for his job".

Marine Jason Hylton, a father of two, was "hugely loyal and hugely professional" and "epitomised the true Commando spirit".

Warrant Officer Lee Hopkins was "fit and ambitious, a shining example to all".

These were four extraordinary people who made the ultimate sacrifice for their country.

This is not the time to debate the rights and wrongs of the war they were asked to fight.

It's simply a time to salute their courage.

Jungle war kicking off

WE feared there was a lack of genuine celebrities.

And we were concerned that there would be a repeat of last year's friendly atmosphere.

But our doubts have proven to be unfounded.

I'm A Celebrity has got off to an explosive start and is set to become unmissable viewing.

Ant and Dec are on fire as the presenters while the contestants are already taking pops at each other.

David Gest has turned out to be an inspired choice as the star performer so far.

He's already called the Prime Minister's sister-in-law Lauren Booth a "f c" and said something pretty foul about Jan Leeming, too.

Scott Henshall has the makings of a first-class bitch and Myleene Klass is letting her hair down.

Who was it that said the show might flop this year?

He's mad for it

MICHAEL Jackson has been shopping for clothes in Topshop.

We didn't know that they sold straitjackets.

POLISHED: He tried nail varnish before getting mobbed, below

POP wacko Michael Jackson stunned fans with a late-night lingerie shopping session.

And he popped out for his night on the town wearing lashings of rose-coloured lip gloss.

The oddball singer went walkabout at midnight in London's biggest Topshop.

Jacko, 48, was on a rare visit to Britain ahead of his performance at tonight's World Music Awards in the city.

Invited

Wearing his trademark shades and a sparkling black jacket, he headed for Japanese restaurant Nobu to dine with Topshop billionaire Sir Philip Green, 54, who then invited him for some after-dinner retail therapy.

His flagship store on London's Oxford Street was opened specially for him.

One onlooker said: "He wandered through the lingerie department and was looking around him all the time. Jacko also ended up having a browse through the ladieswear section, as well as menswear and accessories."

Jacko - rumoured to owe £157million - was said to have been "impressed" with the bargains on offer.

A Topshop spokesman said: "Sir Philip invited Michael on a tour. They spent an hour there, and Michael really enjoyed being shown round." Crowds gathered outside Jacko's hotel, The Hempel, where the star is spending £50,000 a night housing his entourage. Some fans broke down in tears as he waved from the balcony.

MYLEENE

OK, so the babe is either seriously bored or has some weird fetish but which ever, it made us sick watching her trimming David's nose hair...yuck!

TOBY

He's getting to grips with jungle life – and Myleene! He's the new Cheat-ah in camp but does he have what it takes to go the whole hog?

LAUREN

Day two and she'll have already had the PM cringeing when she let slip some of his secrets – 17 more days to go...we can't wait!

DAVID

Old plastic face is proving quite popular in camp after bagging six meals for the group – but with so many more nights of his snoring there's still time for a rumble in the jungle!

JASON

He's won the hearts and minds of all the girls in the camp – let's hope he lives up to expectations and doesn't prove to be a big bore.

FAITH

She's hasn't had much luck with her celebrity chest so far. No, we don't mean her mega-boobs! She may have found the luxury food chest but ended up with the booby prize.

MATT

He's failed to live up to all the hype and has proved to be a real bore. As the baby of the group maybe his mum should come pick him up so the adults can have some real fun.

FLIRT ALERT: Toby Anstis

Randy Toby's
frisky
game

■ by PETER DYKE
SEX-starved Toby Anstis is getting his paws into the ladies in the jungle camp.

The 35-year-old may have a sexy girlfriend back home but he's been enjoying himself in the Outback.

Toby decided to get his hands on Mylene Klass yesterday just 24 hours after he got frisky with Jan Leeming and Faith Brown.

Last night his girlfriend of almost two years, Stephanie Stewart, from London, said she'd be having words when he got back.

The babe, 23, said: "He's such a big kid and a bit of a flirt. I trust him 100% - he's the love of my life."

"But I'll definitely be having a few words with him."

Romeo

"It'll be hard to see him massaging another woman. There's no way he would ever cheat on me though."

"We're a very strong couple and call each other at least 20 times a day."

Randy Toby has certainly tried to make his mark as the show's Romeo.

First of all he admitted he had a crush on ex-BBC hack Jan, 64, and has been giving her lots of cuddles to comfort her. And the ex-kids' TV star couldn't hide his excitement at sharing a shower with big-chested Faith, 65.

Yesterday he turned his attentions to Mylene.

The ex-Hear-Say beauty had complained she was constipated and feeling uncomfortable. So Toby offered Mylene.

28, a massage. He told her: "Do you want the full neck and back rub? I can give it all to you."

The beauty, who is engaged to former minder Graham Quinn, cooed: "Ooh, yes please."

Freak's a hero

■ FREAKY David Gest was hailed a jungle hero after braving a nasty Bushtucker Trial, called Flash Flood, and winning six meals for hungry campers.

The 53-year-old concert boss was put into a locked tank and had to fish for stars (food tokens) as it filled up with water, alligators, snakes and spiders.

The brave star ran out of time but still managed to bag six stars, telling fellow celebs: "They put two gators in with me and when I saw them I said: 'Weren't you at my wedding?'"

"I didn't want another night of rice and beans. I hope we get champagne on ice and fruit and chocolate and wine and stinky cheese."

Jason Donovan, 38, gave him a celebratory massage and said: "I think you are going to be surprised about what people see in you now. You could be King David of the Jungle."

SOAP faves Malandra Burrows and Dean Gaffney are heading into the jungle to sex up I'm A Celebrity.

ITV1 chiefs want the duo, who are both single, to add spice and much-needed love action.

Network chiefs revealed last night that the pair will be parachuted in as late arrivals - just as the Daily Star exclusively predicted.

An ITV1 source said: "The newcomers will be the first of several twists."

gle." Ex-EastEnders Dean has a real-life reputation as a womaniser.

And during her time as man-hungry Emmerdale sexpot Kathy Glover, Malandra was married THREE times and enjoyed a series of steamy flings.

Late

A close friend of Malandra, 41, confirmed: "She flew out yesterday and is looking forward to appearing on the show. Malandra knew she'd be in I'm A Celebrity and knew she'd be going out late."

The blonde beauty is believed to be dating a businessman called Ben though friends insist the relationship is "nothing too serious."

Dean, 28, who played roadsweeper Robbie Jackson, has a stormy on-off relationship with long-term love Sarah Burge, 29. They have 10-year-old twins Charlotte and Chloe.

DOUBLE TOP: Russell Brand

Russ is up for award double

■ by NIGEL PAULEY
RUSSELL Brand looks set to steal the show at next month's British Comedy Awards.

Scruffy-haired swordsman Russell, 31, is up for two major awards at the live telly gong show.

The Big Brother's Big Mouth and Russell Brand's Got Issues star has been nominated as best male newcomer and for best live stand-up tour.

Joining him will be Welsh diva Charlotte Church, 20, who has been nominated for her first gong – as best female newcomer.

But Little Britain won't be making it a hat-trick of wins for Best TV Comedy after failing to make the shortlist.

Extras, starring Ricky Gervais, 45, and Ashley Jensen, 37, will battle it out with Peep Show and The Thick of It. Sexy Ashley, best newcomer and best actress last year for her role as hapless Maggie, also misses out.

David Mitchell and Robert Webb, both 33, are up for four awards, while Catherine Tate, 38, is hot favourite for best actress.

Boozy

Ricky, who missed out last year despite a record five nominations, faces competition from sidekick Stephen Merchant, 32, for best comedy actor.

Bosses have taken steps to try to cut out the usual bad boozy behaviour at this year's live bash, hosted by Jonathan Ross, 45.

They have cut the awards down to just 90 minutes from a sprawling two-and-a-half hours by trimming the main ITV1 show to just 10 awards – the rest will be screened on ITV2 later.

● The British Comedy Awards are on ITV1 on December 13 at 9pm.

Classic 1930s Christmas annual is not so Dandy

COMIC SPARKS RACE HATE FEAR

OFFENDED: Winston Walker

A DANDY annual from 1939 which has been reprinted for this Christmas has sparked a race row.

Thousands of copies could now be pulped if watchdogs decide it is offensive.

But last night the publishers of the £16.99 comic annual stood by it.

There are repeated references to "ns" in the Smarty Grandpa strip - some of which is reprinted here. Grandpa is seen begging with a blackened face saying: "Hi folks. Help the n minstrel." Later, he helps two minstrels whose show has flopped.

■ by CAMERON MILLAR

Business student Winston Walker, 42, from Jamaica, said: "I couldn't believe it when I opened the book and saw the Smarty Grandpa page."

Harmony

"There is no doubt in my mind the reprint should have been edited." Publisher DC Thomson said it had no plans to recall the book.

A spokesman said: "This is a true facsimile of the edition published in the 1930s.

"Obviously, sensitivity at the time did not consider this to be inflammatory at all. It is promoting racial harmony, if anything."

"Smarty Grandpa earns money for pals for a slap-up feed because they couldn't do it. I don't think he says anything that could be considered racially prejudiced."

A Commission for Racial Equality spokesman said: "We will look at the book and make a decision on whether it is inflammatory."

Mouthy David's a Gest star

FIRST question from the new I'm A Celebrity: Are there any men on it who AREN'T gay?

No. They're all very, very happy. And already jostling for position.

The opening titles provided relief from all those awfully cheesy "getting out of the limo shots" of previous series by only allowing head shots.

Though Toby Anstis masterfully managed to squeeze in a wacky hand gesture to try to stand out from the off.

He later revealed his nickname was Tigger because like Tigger he's "upbeat and bouncy". Although it could mean that like Tigger he's stupid and irritating.

David Gest hit the ground running. Off at the mouth anyway. He got upset at Lauren Booth for slugging him off in a newspaper article.

He didn't like people "who use me just to get publicity for themselves".

Quite right David, who of course nobody had heard of until he married showbiz legend Liza Minnelli.

Security wasn't very tight. There was some old guy passing himself off as Jason Donovan. He was getting ready to bungee out of a helicopter when he said: "My motto is: jump - you might fly."

My motto is: "Forget the Verve; Jason Donovan is living proof that the drugs DON'T work."

Scott Henshall said he was famous for designing the most expensive dress in the world. Not so famous that I've heard of it though.

Never have I been so convinced that someone will be first out since Iain Dowie was made Charlton boss.

Mylene Klass has been very clever. Although she was caught smuggling in rolls and jam in her bra, if the shots taken of her are anything to go by it seems she's got away with what looks like two mini Twixes stuffed in there.

But jostling for early position can have its drawbacks - Phina already looks horribly pushy. Jan decidedly weedy and Matt tried to play the "I'm more scared than anyone of jumping out of a helicopter so give me all the height-based trials" card.

But he blew it when the inner lad took over and he quite rightly started loving the bungee.

Back to Gest, because the fella really is a genius whether he's talking about playing with Michael Jackson's snake at Neverland, or suggesting that Jan has her head where her vagina should be (and I'll let you supply your own 3,000 non-office-friendly gags that I could write now).

He's great value simply because he is a) nuts to begin with; b) loaded enough to not need the show, and c) Hollywood enough to not bother who he pisses off.

He is Reality TV gold and rightly his odds of winning halved immediately the first show finished.

WELL done to Princess Beatrice for proving she's her mother's daughter by signing up for Richard Branson's Inter-galactic mission. When she was married to Prince Andrew, Fergie never went on a week's skiing holiday when two were available.

BOND'S TOOLE MISSING

I WAS disappointed by that Top Ten of James Bond double entendres as chosen by so-called 007 fans. Fans my SMERSH!

There was no place for the two greatest Bond lines of all time. Both uttered, of course, by Sir Sean Connery. Firstly from Diamonds are Forever...

Plenty O Toole: Hi. I'm Plenty.

Bond: But of course you are.

Plenty: Plenty O'Toole.

Bond: Named after your father I presume?

But best of all from: Goldfinger.

Pussy Galore: Hello. I am Pussy Galore.

Bond: I must be dreaming.

WHY of course! We should have seen it coming. And maybe we will. For Kevin Federline apparently has a sex tape of him and Britney making whoopee.

What is it with these celebs? Are they THAT desperate to get into movies that they insist on making their own?

You can hardly blame Fed Ex for making the tape - after all a movie company has already offered £26million for it.

That's more than Sir Richard Attenborough made in his entire career as an actor.

But then maybe this movie has a bigger Dickie in it.

And there are

I'm after the Brit flick too already quotes from "insiders" (has there ever been a more apt use of the word?) that say the Britney/K-Fed tapes make Paris Hilton's DIY sex flick look "like Disney".

Disney? Perhaps I saw a different version of Lady and The Tramp?

Was Pokeahumpass spelt wrong on my DVD? Or Bumbi?

Britney is trying to buy the tape. Funnily enough so am I.

■ MICHAEL Jackson has hired ex-SAS minders after he claims that he's being stalked by an odd-looking drag queen. Well just return Madonna's phone calls then.

LEONA'S STAR SIGNS

IT was ironic that Simon Cowell was called Darth Vader on Saturday's X Factor, because for the first time ever each MacDonald Brother had a harmony that was in the same galaxy as the other. Well done, lads. Finally you're competent.

They weren't brilliant, and certainly to even breathe their name in the same sentence as the likes of Ben, Ray, Eton Road, Robert and Leona is the biggest act of musical wrongdoing since someone told Chris Waddle and Glenn Hoddle that they "had it".

Forget the official competition - there are only three lots on this show with a hope of selling albums in 2006: Eton Road, Leona and Ray.

And out of that lot Leona looks and sounds like she's had 10 platinum albums and got a few stadium tours under her belt already. As lovely and undoubtedly talented as the rest are (obviously not including the MacDonald Brothers), Leona is so far above them in terms of superstar status we simply don't have the machinery capable of measuring it.

Whether she comes first in the final, she's won already. And all the judges know that.

■ TOM Cruise is planning to make David Beckham a film star. And I didn't even know they were planning a live action version of Mickey Mouse.

MUCCA LEGS IT

She sells hideaway

HEATHER MILLS has lost a second home in a week.

■ by GARY NICKS

Sir Paul McCartney's estranged wife is selling the converted barn she bought after splitting from the ex-Beatle.

Lady Mucca, 38, paid £550,000 for the country pad when Macca issued divorce papers in May.

She bought the home in Beckley, East Sussex – near his 950-acre Peasmarsh estate – so they could share custody of their daughter Beatrice, three. But an insider said: "The roadside location means there's very little privacy."

Naked

Macca, 64, is also pulling down their £1million lovenest on the estate.

Animal rights charity People For The Ethical Treatment of Animals has dropped plans to use Heather in a "I'd Rather Go Naked Than Wear Fur" campaign.

☐ SIR Paul showed no signs of strain yesterday when he rubbed shoulders with fans in New York.

He was at Virgin Megastores, in Times Square, to sign copies of his new classical album Ecce Cor Meum. Some devoted fans queued for two days for the chance to meet their idol.

☐ New Yorker Susan Roazzi said: "I told him that we believe in his goodness and wish he and his family peace."

"He said: 'Thank you very much.' He was very warm and responsive."

STABBED: Joe Geeling

Killer's prison appeal

THE sentence given to the teenage killer of schoolboy Joe Geeling has been referred to the Court of Appeal.

Michael Hamer, 15, was jailed for life last month and ordered to serve a minimum of 12 years.

But prosecutors asked Attorney General Lord Goldsmith to consider whether it was too short.

He has now written to Joe's parents, Tom and Gwen, to tell them of the appeal decision.

Hamer stabbed cystic fibrosis sufferer Joe, 11, to death after luring him to his home in March.

Last week Joe's parents, of Bury, Lancs, criticised the sentence for being "too lenient".

£17Bn CHRISTMAS

SPENDING on Christmas presents will hit a 12-year high of £16.9 billion, with each Brit splashing out around £378, says Deloitte.

FOUR MURDERED IN HOUSE OF HORROR

GRIM: Police search for clues

TWO fun-loving children were yesterday found butchered along with their mum and grandmother in a blood-spattered house.

The bodies of Abigail Crampton, 12, and her five-year-old brother Steven were discovered in separate rooms at the family home.

Their mum Liz, 36, and her Nigerian-born mother Omotunde Sobó, 58, were found nearby.

Screams

The family had been slaughtered in a frenzied knife attack before breakfast yesterday. A neighbour who heard the little boy's screams thought he was just being naughty or having a tantrum.

Police raced to the £350,000 semi-detached home in the tree-lined street in an upmarket suburb of Gosforth, Newcastle upon Tyne, after being alerted by a tip-off.

Supermarket checkout worker Liz was separated from her children's dad, taxi driver Neil Crampton, 33.

Following the break-up he moved back to his childhood home at Blaydon eight miles away to live with his parents Bill, 70, and Ann, 65.

Neighbours last night spoke

MURDER SCENE: The sealed off area near the house yesterday

by JERRY LAWTON

of their shock at the tragedy. Jean Alexander, 89, said she heard Steven's cries yesterday morning before police arrived on the street.

She said: "I thought nothing of it. I assumed he was being mischievous or having a tantrum."

Elizabeth Cessford, whose home overlooks the family's garden, said: "It is devastating. They were a joy, the little ones. Their garden was always full of toys. I heard the children laughing all summer, which is a nice memory of them."

Bubbly

Former colleagues of Liz at the local post office described her as a "lovely, friendly woman who adored her kids".

And manageress Wendy Tiltman said: "She had a bubbly personality and was loved by everyone who knew her. She left us last November to spend more time with her children and she was taking an Open University course in childcare."

Yesterday afternoon a 33-year-old male relative was arrested in Blaydon and was last night being quizzed by Northumbria detectives.

Det Supt Steve Wade, leading the murder inquiry, appealed for witnesses to come forward.

Mad for more

MADONNA is clearly worn out by all the fuss over her adoption of a baby from Malawi.

But there's no stopping the Material Girl, pictured here leaving the trendy Drones eatery in London's Mayfair, looking tired and drawn.

We hear the 48-year-old now wants to adopt a baby "sister" for 14-month-old David Banda.

Asked if she wanted another child she said: "Yes, absolutely. I'm going to adopt another Malawian child very quickly. A baby girl this time."

QUICKIE...

THE Armani outfits were yesterday delivered to the Rome hotel where Tom Cruise, 47, is staying with fiancée Katie Holmes, 27, ahead of their wedding.

And we're told Katie, who has a seven-month-old daughter with Hollywood star Cruise, is planning a sizzling wedding night treat for soon-to-be husband.

The former Dawson's Creek star splashed out a staggering £2,000-plus on kinky underwear!

The pair are set to tie the knot at a nearby medieval castle this weekend.

QUICKIE...

JADE Goody's mum has vowed to "kill" her daughter's boyfriend Jack Tweedy if he hurts her. Jackie Budden, 48, trusts the football agent, 19, despite claims he's been cheating on Jade.

She said: "He's a lovely guy, but if he did anything to my Jade I would kill him, I really would."

Jackie also rubbished claims mum-of-two Jade, 25, had punched Jack during a bust-up.

She said: "Jade doesn't fight. She and Jack have the odd argument but it's never got physical."

QUICKIE...

REESE Witherspoon has spoken of her split with actor Ryan Phillippe, 32, claiming they neglected each other during their marriage.

The actress, who filed for divorce from her husband of seven years last month – said work and their two children came between them.

Reese, 30, said: "Love is a beautiful thing. But you've got 50 things that come during the day, like driving the kids to school, picking up the in-laws at the airport and working on a script when one of the kids has a high fever."

QUICKIE...

MC Harvey had better not walk down any dark alleys with mother-in-law Bev Harris on the prowl.

Ex-Mis-Teeq babe Alesha Dixon's ma is fuming with the randy rapper, 27, for cheating on her 28-year-old daughter with pop star Jay-Z, 24.

Bev raged: "I love my daughter and I have raised her to be a loyal, good girl. 'I'm disappointed and devastated for her. He'll go to hell!'"

He'll be safer there – hell hath no fury like a woman scorned.

LIAM TO OPEN A PUB WITH PETE

LIAM Gallagher is joining forces with Pete Doherty to open a late-night north London pub.

The 34-year-old Oasis star came up with the plan after being persuaded by the Babyshambles singer during a chat in a boozer near the home of Pete's lover Kate Moss.

An insider said: "Liam loves the old days of north London where his group would hang at cool boozers such as the Good Mixer in Camden."

"But there just isn't the same vibe anymore, even at the live music venues there."

"Pete knows Liam through singer Lisa Moorish, with whom they both have children, and got talking to him one night and suggested they start their own cool venue. Somewhere with traditional ales, lagers and spirits with a good old-fashioned pub grub vibe – square pies,

LAGER POUT: Liam Gallagher

bangers and mash and all that. But the main element is somewhere late where up-and-coming artists and bands can showcase their new music.

"It would have a retro feel and be somewhere cool where luvvies, music industry types and models could feel at home."

And it certainly sounds like somewhere that supermodel Kate, 32, would fit in.

Pictured in Paris ahead of Pete's Babyshambles performance, she certainly looked ready to let her hair down.

Having arrived wearing a white fake fur coat, far right, the catwalk queen headed to the Ritz for a few hours before leaving in this leopard print number.

Pete, 27, was snapped at the airport after flying to a gig in Toulouse, France.

Our mole added: "Pete and Liam are looking at a place in Kentish Town near the Pineapple pub on Leventon Street."

We're sure there will be Cigarettes and Alcohol all round...

HAVE YOU GOT SOME JUICY GOSSIP FOR US?

CHEEKY BAGGER

COLEEN McLoughlin has confessed she was so desperate to get her hands on a Hermes Birkin bag she turned to Victoria Beckham for help.

The black designer bag, seen here on the arm of 21-year-old soccer star Wayne Rooney's fiancée, 20, is on a waiting list at most Hermes stores.

But a little push from her posh pal helped her jump the queue. Coleen said: "I looked in a Hermes shop in the South of France but they had a long waiting list, so I called Victoria."

"After making a few calls she phoned back to say that a black Birkin was coming into the Hermes shop in Manchester."

Coleen then went on to give her fashion tips for next year, insisting the Chav style will be hot.

SPOTTED

IN London: Rachel Stevens at Heathrow, Jarvis Cocker on Camden High Street and Trudie Styler jogging through Regent's Park. David Walliams outside HMV, Oxford Street, Tamzin Outhwaite looking glam in Primrose Hill and Dale Winton leaving The Ivy, then clambering into a flash car.

HUSH HUSH

THIS boyband member kicked off with his stylist, insisting he is "uncomfortable" in the trendy togs he has to wear. And he also moaned about being told to whittle down his weight and work out twice a day. Perhaps if he changed his diet of crisps and fizzy drinks, he'd be better off. And he wouldn't be on a list to get facial skin surgery.

The 20-year-old thesp is here to present the World Music Awards at Earl's Court tonight.

She got into the spirit of it by flashing the muso's international sign for peace and love.

That's all very well, young lady, but if that's real fur you're wearing be prepared to dodge some flak.

NAME CHANGES BUT OMAR STILL SPOUTS HATRED

Kicked-out cleric's daily rants

EXILED Islamic cleric Omar Bakri is using false identities to keep on preaching hate to British Muslims.

A covert investigation caught the extremist still broadcasting his support for terror attacks in the UK on the internet most evenings.

Bakri's chatroom was infiltrated by a group called Vigil, which includes ex-police and security service people, it was revealed last night.

They caught Bakri advising that Dublin Airport should be hit "very hard" because US troops pass through it on the way to Iraq, Bakri said to one question: "Hit

by JAMES WICKHAM

the target and hit it very hard, that issue should be understood."

The investigation, which was led by Radio 4's File On 4 and BBC2's Newsnight, also found Bakri praising the 7/7 London bombers who were "in paradise". He said: "How can you condemn those great men - it's not something so bad, something so good."

Barred

Bakri ran the radical al-Muhajiroun group from Tottenham, north London, until it was banned last year. The then Home Secretary Charles Clarke barred him from returning to Britain while he was out of the country in August 2005. The investigation used voice recognition computer software to prove that Bakri broadcasts online. Vigil claims UK authorities have been slow to crack down on the broadcasts.

One academic who is a member of Vigil contacted the Metropolitan Police's anti-terrorist hotline saying he had more than 100 hours of material from the chatroom only to be told to contact his local police station.

He said: "The anti-terrorist office showed no sense of urgency to get this information."

Home Office Minister Tony McNulty said he would examine the claim. He also said: "Glorifying terrorism on the internet is an offence and we are trying to deal with it and keep up with it."

The investigation also discovered evidence that young British Muslims are being radicalised by extremists on university campuses.

Gwen Stefani's video for new single Wind It Up will be based on The Sound Of Music. The kooky singer, 36, explained: "It'll be really cool-looking. I remember when I was a little girl and saw The Sound of Music it was such a huge inspiration for me."

SHOT

No Bloc bookings

BLOC Party have scrapped their US tour thanks to their drummer's collapsed lung.
It's a good enough reason, I suppose.
Matt Tong, 27, was rushed to hospital last week when his breathing gear packed in after a gig.
Frontman Kele Okereke, 25, said: "We apologise to all our fans who won't be able to see us. But Matt's health is our number one priority."

the Binman dumps Saints

GIRLS' GIANT

EXCLUSIVE

ALL Saints have been dealt a damning blow by the public and I fear they could soon be dropped.

The newly-reformed girl group needed to come back with a bang and secure a high chart placing with their album Studio 1.

Early midweek sales show them to be in with a bullet at Number 41.
Pretty appalling by anyone's standards and it will leave the girls feeling deflated.

Their new effort has been soundly beaten by Andy Abraham, 40, the X Factor binman who, with over 5,000 sales of Soul Man, has more than doubled their tally.

Airplay

My friendly industry bigwig told me: "This is severely disappointing for the girls and could spell a very short return to the charts for them."

"They've had a lot of publicity and a lot of radio airplay on their new single, but it seems people just don't care. Their label will be seriously considering the value in pursuing this project much further."

I've nothing against Natalie Appleton, 33, sister Nicole Shaznay Lewis, and Mel Blatt, all 31, but it is worth pointing out at this stage that I never got to interview them for this campaign.

Who knows, a bit of coverage in this column might have won them a few fans.

Kath is just pure class

SHE'S Katherine Jenkins. I don't normally offer up imagery of classical types on the column, but for some reason, I rather like Welsh one Katherine.

She's had four consecutive No 1 albums in the classical charts, which is a record.
And with Christmas coming, I could see new effort Serenade doing well.

Plus she's paying a visit to the troops abroad for Christmas, which I'm sure will make their day.

CAUGHT LIVE THE AUTOMATIC Boule Noir, Paris

SECONDS after finishing the opening number at their first gig in Paris and The Automatic fear Pennie's keyboard has taken too much of a thrashing.

The way the Welsh wonderkid pounds at the keys it's likely his equipment spends most of its time in the repair shop.

Thankfully, it's robust enough to carry on delivering the spikey sounds from the foursome's debut album Not Accepted Anywhere.

Tightening their

'Pennie pounds away'

performance during a year of gigs, the singles Raoul, Recover and, of course, Monster are the highlights.

Pennie's shrieking now complements singer Rob's roaring vocals. Instead of overshadowing them as he threatened previously. But it's with the inspired cover of Gold Digger and Rob's flute playing that The Automatic confirm they're well and truly accepted as being brilliantly ace. Fact.

'SCROOGE YOU...AND YOUR ACT'

Barrymore faces dad protest at pantomime

FALLEN Michael Barrymore has found his comeback threatened by the dad of the man found dead in his pool.

Furious Terry Lubbock has bought up front row seats in protest as shamed Michael makes his return to the stage in Scrooge - The Musical.

The former Strike It Lucky Star will play the title role in the smash West End show, which was set to begin a national tour in Wolverhampton last night.

Terry Lubbock, 61, said: "I'm going to get in his face. Just being there will shame him."

DROWNED: "I have a ticket to the stalls, and I am sure he will be able to see me in the audience. I will be right there on his shoulder, waiting for the man to spill the beans." Gav

by CAMERON MILLAR

Barrymore, 54, is hoping to use the appearance to jump-start his ailing career, following his appearance in Celebrity Big Brother where he was runner-up to Chantelle Houghton, 23.

The ex funnyman left the UK after partygoer Stuart Lubbock, 31, was found drowned in his pool in Essex five years ago with horrific anal injuries.

Mr Lubbock, 61, was dragged away by security guards when he ambushed the presenter recently at a signing of his new autobiography, Awight Now - Setting the Record Straight.

Quart Lubbock is Dickens's greatest character – a challenge I relish.”
